

Swiss-AS Press Release

airberlin takes off with AMOS

May 2016

At a glance

- AMOS satisfies complex business needs
- Use of AMOS Multi-Financial-Entity capabilities
- Excellent cooperation between airberlin and Swiss-AS

Approximately two years ago the airberlin group decided to replace its legacy system and to implement AMOS as the best fit to support the maintenance and engineering activities of the group. Austrian based carrier NIKI, a member of the airberlin group and an AMOS customer since 2006, encouraged the selection of AMOS. Now, since April 2016, all members of the airberlin group (airberlin, NIKI, Belair and airberlin Technik) take full advantage of the wide spectrum of AMOS functions to fulfill the complex business requirements of the group.

Another group relying on AMOS Multi-Financial-Entity capabilities

The airberlin group is an additional AMOS customer who relies on the AMOS Multi-Financial-Entity capabilities which were designed to allow airline groups to share one AMOS productive environment but still maintain and monitor the financial data of each entity within the group separately.

Excellent cooperation during implementation

The project was well managed by the airberlin and Swiss-AS teams to satisfy a range of complex tasks such as data migration, data harmonization between the different entities, and the detailed definition of the future processes employed by the group. Thanks to an excellent cooperation between the parties, AMOS was successfully implemented within the allocated time and budget frame, including its full integration with the Finance and OPS applications.
